EMPLOYMENT REPORT

Arizona Department of Commerce, Research Administration

December 18, 2008

State Unemployment Rate Rises to 6.3 Percent in November; U.S. Average at 6.7 Percent

In November 2008, Arizona had an over-the-month gain of 3,200 non-farm jobs. The rate for this over-the-month gain was 0.1 percent and was far below the 10-year average of 0.8 percent. A majority of these over-the-month increases occurred in the major industries of trade, transportation and utilities (+4,900 jobs); government (+1,600 jobs); leisure and hospitality (+1,400 jobs); educational and health services (+600 jobs); other services (+600 jobs); and information (+100 jobs).

The greatest employment losses were primarily in the goods-producing industries (-3,800 jobs), including the major industries of natural resources and mining (-500 jobs), construction (-2,800 jobs) and manufacturing (-500 jobs). Reductions were also recorded in the service-providing industries of professional and business services (-1,900 jobs) and financial activities (-300 jobs).

Over-the-year nonfarm job losses in Arizona for November totaled 83,100, or 3.1 percent. For any November, it was the steepest over-the-year percentage decline since November 1949 when there was a reduction of 3.2 percent. November's over-the-year percentage decline was also the largest since the period of April to July 1975 when the 12-month drop ranged between 3.3 and 4.6 percent (June). The largest over-the-year percentage job decline for any month in Arizona occurred in December 1945 with a loss of 8.2 percent. Since the most recent peak in employment of December 2006, Arizona has lost 88,900 jobs.

Arizona's seasonally adjusted rate of unemployment increased from 6.1 percent in October to 6.3 percent in November. In November 2007, the adjusted rate of unemployment was 4.1 percent in Arizona. For the nation, the adjusted rate of unemployment in November was 6.7 percent, up from 6.5 percent in October.

Natural resources and mining lost 500 jobs over-the-month in November. These reductions were mostly in metal ore mining (-400 jobs). Because of two consecutive months of over-the-month job losses that began in October 2008, the most recent expansion in natural resources and mining seems to have ended with the slowdown in the global economy. Recently, mining companies across the world have been cutting back on operations and laying off workers as demand and prices have fallen. Construction employment reductions numbered 2,800 in November.

Losses were in all reported sectors: specialty trades (-2,400 jobs), buildings (-300 jobs), and heavy and civil engineering (-100 jobs). In comparison to November 2007, construction had 35,500 fewer jobs, or a drop of 16.5 percent (see graphs on page 5).

Since the most recent peak of employment in June 2006, construction has lost 67,900 jobs.

Manufacturing lost 500 jobs over-the-month in November. Reductions in the durable goods sectors numbered 300 jobs. Non-durable goods sectors reported a smaller decrease of 200 jobs. In durable goods, aerospace had a loss of 100 jobs while employment levels in fabricated metals remained unchanged. In contrast, computer and electronic products had a slight gain of 100 jobs. Over-the-year job losses in manufacturing for November totaled 3,400. The pace of over-the-year job losses in this major industry group has leveled off near 2 percent since September 2008.

Trade, transportation and utilities gained 4,900 jobs in November. As a result of the current economic downturn, the over-the-month gains in this major industry group were well below the 10-year average rate of increase. Job gains were primarily concentrated in retail trade sectors with an increase of 5,300. In contrast, losses were reported in the remaining sectors of wholesale trade (-200 jobs) and transportation, warehousing and utilities (-200 jobs).

Over-the-year job losses for November in trade, transportation and utilities totaled 26,400. The pace of the over-the-year losses in this major industry group has been increasing since May 2008. For November 2008, the over-the-year rate of loss, 4.9 percent, was the largest in historical record.

Retail trade job gains were mostly in the general merchandise sector (+2,900 jobs). Within general merchandise, gains occurred in department stores (+1,400 jobs) and other general merchandise (+1,500 jobs). Other retail sectors with employment increases included clothing and clothing accessories (+400 jobs) along with food and beverage stores (+500 jobs). Job reductions occurred in the retail sectors of motor vehicles and parts (-600 jobs), furniture and home furnishings (-100 jobs) and building materials and gardening supplies (-400 jobs).

In transportation, warehousing and utilities, losses in transportation were in the trucking sector (-100 jobs). Employment levels remained flat in both air transportation and utilities.

Information had a slight over-the-month increase of 100 jobs in November. In contrast, the telecommunications sector lost 100 jobs. Job gains occurred in unreported information sectors. Information employment levels have been decreasing for almost eight years. In November 2008, over-the-year job losses numbered 3,000. Since the most recent peak of employment levels in June 2000, information has lost 15,800 jobs.

Financial activities had a decrease of 300 jobs in November. These losses were in the sectors of credit intermediation (-200 jobs) and real estate (-100 jobs). Conversely, employment levels were unchanged in the sectors of insurance and securities and commodities contracts. Over-the-year job reductions in financial activities for November totaled 4,400. The rate of over-the-year job losses in this industry group has been slowing since reaching a peak of 4.4 percent in April 2008. For November 2008, the rate of loss was 2.4 percent.

Professional and business services lost 1,900 jobs in November. A majority of these losses occurred in employment services (-1,400 jobs). Employment reductions were also reported in the sectors of professional and technical services (-300 jobs), services to buildings and dwellings (-200 jobs) and management (-100 jobs). In contrast, the only reported sector with gains was business support services with an increase of 100 jobs. According to over-the-year job figures, employment services was the weakest sector in November with a loss of 11.6 percent, or 14,000 jobs. Over-the-year losses numbered 15,400 jobs for professional and business services in November. The rate of over-the-year employment losses has been accelerating since March 2008. In November, the rate was 3.8 percent. Since the most recent peak of employment in December 2006, professional and business services has lost 19,500 jobs.

Educational and health services gained 600 jobs over-the-month in November. These increases were in health care and social assistance (+1,000 jobs). In health care, ambulatory services had an increase of 400 jobs. Hospitals gained 300 jobs while employment in residential care increased by 200 jobs. Social assistance had an increase of 100 jobs. Unlike health care and social assistance, private educational services lost jobs (-400). Over-the-year, private educational services was the weakest sector with a loss rate of 0.2 percent, or 100 jobs. Conversely, the strongest sector was social assistance with an over-the-year gain of 1,500 jobs, or 4.3 percent. For educational and health services, an over-the-year gain of 9,800 jobs, or 3.2 percent, was recorded in November 2008.

Leisure and hospitality had an over-the-month increase of 1,400 jobs.

A majority of these increases occurred in the sectors of accommodation (+500 jobs) and food services (+900 jobs). In contrast, employment levels in arts, entertainment and recreation were unchanged. The rate of over-the-month gains in leisure and hospitality was below the 10-year average for November. Over-the-year losses totaled 7,300 jobs, or 2.7 percent, for this major industry group. The pace of over-the-year reductions has been accelerating since September 2008.

Other services had an over-the-month gain of 600 jobs in November. In contrast to most other major industry groups, this over-the-month increase was above the 10-year average. Similar to most parts of the economy, other services had over-the-year losses.

Government gained 1,600 jobs in November. These increases were mostly in the educational institutions of state (+100 jobs) and local (+2,100 jobs) government. While total state government had a decrease in employment with a loss of 100, local government reported a gain of 1,700. In contrast, employment levels in the federal government did not change. Among federal, state and local government, the weakest was state government, according to over-the-year job figures, with a loss of 5,400 jobs, or 5.7 percent. Unlike most other major industry groups, government had an over-the-year gain (4,300 jobs, or 1 percent). Since the most recent peak in August 2007, the pace of over-the-year job growth has been trending down.

In conclusion, Arizona had a substantially below 10-year average over-the-month gain of 3,200 nonfarm jobs in November. Job gains were recorded in six major industries including: trade, transportation and utilities; information; educational and health services; leisure and hospitality; other services; and government. Reductions occurred in the remaining five major industries including: natural resources and mining; construction; manufacturing; financial activities; and professional and business services. However, the pace of over-the-year losses in nonfarm employment has been accelerating since May 2008.

Under Titles VI and VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (Title VI & VII), and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA), Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, the Department prohibits discrimination in admissions, programs, services, activities, or employment based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, and disability. The Department must make a reasonable accommodation to allow a person with a disability to take part in a program, service or activity. For example, this means if necessary, the Department must provide sign language interpreters for people who are deaf, a wheelchair accessible location, or enlarged print materials. It also means that the Department will take any other reasonable action that allows you to take part in and understand a program or activity, including making reasonable changes to an activity. If you believe that you will not be able to understand or take part in a program or activity because of your disability, please let us know of your disability needs in advance if at all possible. To request this document in alternative format or for further information about this policy, contact the Department of Economic Security, Division of Developmental Disabilities ADA Coordinator at 602 542-6825 ; TTY/TDD Services: 7-1-1.
